

WASTE MANAGEMENT PHOENIX OPEN 2012

Volunteer Opportunity: Recycling Ambassadors

The Waste Management Phoenix Open (WMPO) attracts up to half a million fans who generate large amounts of waste at the tournament. From set-up to tear down, between food vendors, hospitality tents and Expo exhibitors, all kinds of materials end up in the waste stream. Waste Management is implementing strategic initiatives to help reduce waste, reuse materials, and divert more waste away from landfills. At the 2012 WMPO we will increase collection of recyclables and food waste and ensure these waste streams remain uncontaminated for processing.

One specific initiative to drive diversion at the 2012 WMPO will be the utilization of volunteers to serve as Recycling Ambassadors. Recycling Ambassadors will play an important role in educating tournament attendees, monitoring recycling and food waste receptacles and increasing awareness of the waste diversion goals for the 2012 Waste Management Phoenix Open. Recycling Ambassadors will be stationed at or in close proximity to recycling bins and food waste bins throughout the course, serving as a guide to assist fans with proper disposal of materials. Recycling Ambassadors will actively engage with fans and answer any questions they may have. (Recycling Ambassadors will not be required to handle or sort any waste materials).

Volunteering as a Recycling Ambassador is a fun way to take part in the one of the Valley's most exciting events while supporting WMPO sustainability initiatives. This is also a great opportunity for groups and organizations who enjoy volunteering together.

Each Recycling Ambassador volunteer will receive a free ticket (good for any one day) to come back and enjoy the WMPO in appreciation of their time.
